DEREK (V.O.) DEREK (V.O.)

Remind yourself that challenges are a normal part of the camp experience and that you have the skills and resources to handle them. Practice mindfulness techniques such as grounding exercises or visualization to center yourself and reduce stress. Take a moment to step back from the situation and assess it objectively before taking action. Seek support from a director, if you're feeling overwhelmed. Don't hesitate to ask for help or advice when needed.

Narration/Voiceover/SoundFX:

DEREK (V.O.) DEREK (V.O.)

Finally, prioritize self-care to ensure you're in the best mental and emotional state to handle challenging situations. Get plenty of rest, eat nutritious meals, and engage in activities that help you relax and recharge outside of your camp duties. By following these tips and practicing the STOP method, you'll be better equipped to stay calm and composed in any stressful situation that arises during your time as a camp counselor. This will allow you to think clearly as you move on to the next step.

Step #2 – Assess for Safety

Distinguish between different severity levels:

- Mild – No immediate danger / easy to de-escalate
- Serious – potential to escalate and cause harm
- Urgent – likely danger of harm if immediate action is not taken

By recognizing these levels of severity, you'll be better equipped to ensure the safety and well-being of everyone at camp.

Narration/Voiceover/SoundFX:

DEREK: (V.O.) Step #2 – Assess for Safety. As a counselor, it's crucial to assess the safety of every situation you encounter at camp. This involves distinguishing between different levels of severity to determine the appropriate response:

- 1.MILD: In these situations, nobody is in immediate danger, and the scenario is typically easy to contain or de-escalate.
- 2.SERIOUS: This level indicates that the situation has the potential to escalate in a way that could harm someone if not addressed promptly.
3. URGENT: When a situation is deemed urgent, there is a clear and likely danger of someone being harmed if immediate action is not taken.

By understanding and recognizing these levels of severity, you'll be better equipped to respond effectively and ensure the safety and well-being of everyone at the camp. This brings us to the final step.

Step #3 – Respond Appropriately

- Tailor your actions based on the severity of each circumstance
- Prioritize safety and well-being
- Reach out for help when facing challenges

Narration/Voiceover/SoundFX:
DEREK: (V.O.) Step #3 – Respond Appropriately. Counselors play a crucial role in responding appropriately to various situations that arise at camp. It's essential to tailor your actions based on the severity of each circumstance, prioritizing the safety and well-being of everyone involved. Remember, as directors, we're here to support you whenever you need assistance or guidance. Don't hesitate to reach out for help when facing challenges.
